WELCOME TO the LBC!

A Time to Laugh, Sing, Gather, and Celebrate!

There's something extra special about being part of the LBC community to experience a live performance, especially as the days grow shorter and the holiday season draws near. A great performance can make us laugh, move us, surprise us, or simply give us a chance to set everything else aside and be fully present in the moment together.

This fall and winter, our stages are filled with music, laughter, and discovery from an incredible range of artists and experiences. We'll welcome comedy legends Lily Tomlin and Jerry Seinfeld, along with fan favorites, like Brad Williams and Alton Brown. Highlights for music fans include the sounds of Leonid & Friends and Tower of Power, while Rush Tribute Project brings the music of one of rock's most influential bands to life.

Our season also offers wonderful opportunities to experience the arts together as a family. From the high-energy acrobatics of 360 Allstars to Sesame Street Live! - Elmo's Got the Moves and Nutcracker, there's something for audiences of every age. As the holidays approach, we invite you to celebrate the season with Pink Martini - A Season of Stars, A Celtic Christmas, A Magical Cirque Christmas, and Dave Koz and Friends. These and much more to be discovered in this issue of our Patron Program.

As always, we invite you to explore our website, subscribe to our monthly e-newsletter, and follow us on social media for the latest news, announcements, and behind-the-scenes glimpses. And if there's anything we can do to make your visit more enjoyable, please let our team know. We're always happy to help.

Now, sit back, relax, and enjoy the show!

LYTTON RANCHERIA OF CALIFORNIA

LBC NAMING SPONSOR CHAMPIONS ARTS, EDUCATION, HEALTH AND QUALITY OF LIFE IN SONOMA COUNTY

From their annual participation in the San Pablo Adopt-a-Family program to their generous support of Luther Burbank Center for the Arts, LBC naming sponsor Lytton Rancheria of California is philanthropically active and believes that well-funded service organizations are the key ingredient to a strong community. This belief allows such organizations to be a conduit for enhancing the artistic, educational, health, and overall quality of life experiences of our children, their families, and their teachers.

The Lytton Band has faced many challenges throughout its long history, from natural disaster to the termination of their Tribal status by the Federal government, which was reinstated in 1991 after a 30-year struggle. Since then, the Tribe has significantly improved the lives of their members through investment at the San Pablo Lytton Casino, among other business ventures, resulting in quality healthcare, housing, and education opportunities.

"I attended my first play ever - 'Pinocchio' - here at the Center when I was a child," said Margie Mejia, the Tribe's chairwoman. "It is a great honor for the Tribe to now be in a position to help create those experiences for other children and to help ensure that everyone, regardless of financial means, has access to the arts and education."

Lytton Rancheria has been a stalwart supporter of LBC since 2010 and has generously contributed to the renovation of the eponymous Lytton Rancheria Grand Lobby, as well as the Center's 2013 renovation of the Ruth Finley Person Theater.

Luther Burbank Center for the Arts is proud to have Lytton Rancheria of California as its naming sponsor. The Board, staff and volunteers of LBC are deeply grateful to Lytton Rancheria for investing in our community, and in the Center's mission to enrich, educate, and entertain.

Volunteer Spotlight

LOREN COOPER

Volunteer Loren Cooper First to Receive LBC's Gerri Annis Heart of Service Award

LBC volunteer Loren Cooper is the first recipient of LBC's Gerri Annis Heart of Service Award, which was established last winter to honor volunteers whose extraordinary dedication and longstanding service have strengthened our performing arts and educational mission.

The award is named for one of LBC's longest serving current volunteers, Gerri Annis, who presented the award to Loren in December 2025. 'We are especially honored to have the rare opportunity to create an award in Gerri's name while she is still volunteering at the LBC,' said Betsy Boes, Volunteer and Front of House Manager.

As a patron of LBC for 39 years, Loren joined our volunteer staff as an usher in 2018. He is lead usher at evening performances, and he ushers for school shows and outdoor events. Loren works at the pre-show Club receptions, and he continues to serve as a member of LBC's Volunteer Advisory Committee, which he joined in 2018.

Besides the fellowship of friends, the variety of programming keeps Loren eager to volunteer at as many shows as he can, but he admits the most gratifying part of volunteering is when the show is over. "There is nothing like being there as people are leaving, and they're all telling you what a wonderful time they had. It's great to be around people who really appreciate this place and their experiences here."

Gerri Annis - Living Legend

During her 26 years as a volunteer, Gerri Annis has held a variety of service roles, from ushering and greeting Club guests to scanning tickets, working at the concierge desk and in the office. When The Guild, a former educational forum for volunteers, was operating before the current Ambassador program replaced it, Gerri served as Vice President in 2006 and President from 2004 to 2006 and from 2008 to 2010. She served on the LBC board of directors as a representative of The Guild and helped procure presenters and coordinate luncheons for the Ambassador program. Gerri currently serves on LBC Volunteer Advisory Committee.

WHY VISUAL ARTS MATTER MORE THAN EVER

In a world increasingly dominated by screens, schedules, and constant digital noise, the visual arts offer something essential: moments of reflection, creativity, and connection. Art has the power to slow us down, spark curiosity, and help us see the world – and one another – in new ways.

At Luther Burbank Center for the Arts, the visual arts are woven into the fabric of our campus and our mission. Throughout the year, visitors of all ages can explore more than 50 works in our permanent and rotating collections featured in our free Art Walk, from monumental outdoor sculptures in our Sculpture Garden and Sculpture Courtyard and two large-scale murals adorning the exterior walls of the building to paintings, photography, and textile art displayed in our interior spaces.

During the holiday season, our Northern Lights Winter Lights Art Walk transforms the campus into a wonderland of illuminated sculptures and installations created by local artists, bringing thousands of community members together to experience art in a new light.

Together, these works transform the Center into a living gallery, offering opportunities for inspiration and discovery around every corner. Best of all, our exterior visual arts experiences are free and open to the public (free viewing of interior galleries by appointment), ensuring that everyone has access to creativity and beauty close to home.

From Creativity to Character-Building in the Classroom

Our commitment to visual arts also extends to the next generation of creators. Each summer, young artists explore painting, drawing, mixed media, and other hands-on projects through our Summer Camps, where creativity is encouraged and imagination thrives. At the same time, they are building confidence, developing problem-solving skills, and discovering new ways to express themselves – lessons that extend far beyond the classroom.

In the Santa Rosa camp this past summer, for example, students in one of the visual art classes completed a 16x20 canvas piece using acrylic paints. Each student received a journal on the first day, and they used it to learn to scale their ideas to a larger format, trying out different techniques and working out a solution.

“Not every student is comfortable speaking up or performing in front of others, but almost every child can find a way to express themselves by creating visual art.” said Ashleigh Worley, Director of Education and Community Engagement. “Visual art gives students permission to experiment, make mistakes, and discover what they’re capable of, and those experiences help shape character and prepare them for life beyond the classroom.”

Throughout the school year, LBC’s Artist Residencies put professional artists in local classrooms. In Arts Integration residencies, teaching artists combine an art form – often visual art –and another academic content area to dive deeper into learning. Arts for All residencies allow PK-12th grade classroom teachers to choose from different art forms, including dance, drama, visual art, and music, to ensure that their students receive a diversity of quality arts instruction.

Visual art also enriches the experience of thousands of students who visit the Center each year for School Shows. Teachers are invited to extend their field trips with self-guided campus art walks, complete with age-appropriate prompts and activities that encourage observation, discussion, and creative thinking. By connecting performing and visual arts in a single visit, students gain a deeper appreciation for artistic expression and discover that creativity takes many forms.

Visual art invites conversation, encourages self-expression, and brings beauty into everyday life. At a time when communities, schools, and individuals crave meaningful experiences, visual arts matter now more than ever. We invite you to come and immerse yourself in the rewarding possibilities of the visual arts right here in Santa Rosa's own backyard.

Thanks to the support of donors and members, these visual arts experiences remain accessible and continue to inspire wonder, creativity, and connection for people of all ages.

Lamona Johnson Walraven, a long-time Santa Rosa resident, was a high school teacher and counselor who came of age at a time when most women did not pursue higher education. She earned a master's degree from UC Berkeley, then shared her love for learning with her family and students, believing that all would thrive through the benefits of an education. Lamona left a lasting impact on Luther Burbank Center for the Arts with the first legacy gift ever received. Her thoughtfulness exemplifies the spirit of our region and will benefit our community for years to come.

JULIA GRANT

We Have a $50,000 Match!
Multiply Your Impact;
Learning Changes Lives

"It adds up faster: If you don't give the $15, the $50, the $500, we don't get the $30, the $100, the $1,000." - Julia Grant

For Julia Grant, giving is a way to invest in the organizations she believes make a meaningful difference in people's lives. Through her community fund, she supports organizations across Sonoma County, but year after year, Luther Burbank Center for the Arts remains one of her most significant recipients. She has seen firsthand the breadth of LBC's work and has confidence in its ability to respond to what people need: opportunities to learn, grow, and experience the joy of the arts at every stage of life.

That belief is at the heart of Julia's decision to offer a $50,000 matching gift for LBC's end-of-year appeal.

"Kids are our future," she said. "They need whatever we can give to them to ensure success at school, at home, in the community, and throughout their lives."

Julia first discovered the breadth of LBC's education work during a site visit years ago. Sitting on the stage over lunch, she watched a video featuring students and teachers whose lives were being enriched by LBC programs. What struck her was that LBC wasn't simply bringing arts experiences to students. It was supporting teachers, too.

"I never thought about an arts center, especially one known for big live performances, would put something out there for the schools, and that really impressed me," she recalled. Then she learned that LBC also provides adult guitar classes and a music program for seniors in memory care.

That commitment to filling gaps and creating opportunities throughout the lifespan is what has kept Julia supporting LBC year after year. She sees the Center as an organization that understands what communities need and continually finds ways to meet those needs, particularly when schools and other institutions cannot do it alone.

Her belief in the importance of arts education is also deeply personal.

Julia didn't grow up with art in her life. In fact, she didn't discover her own creative potential until she was a teenager. It took on profound significance in her 30s and 40s, when she returned to college to earn a degree in art. At 54, she began weaving. At 74, she discovered quilting. In her 80s, she began creating fabric art.

Each new creative pursuit brought something different into her life. Weaving became a form of meditation. Quilting challenged her to solve problems and persevere through frustration. Trying new forms of art kept her curious, engaged and learning.

"Creativity, the opportunity to express creatively, is essential to living," Julia said. "It empowers you with a sense of self. It surprises and delights you when you discover what you can do, and then when you see, through your art, a deep belief of something good in you, something beautiful. It certainly keeps me happy, and it gives me joy."

That lifelong journey of discovery is part of what Julia sees in LBC's work. Arts education gives young people opportunities to discover interests, build confidence, and develop creativity and problem-solving skills they carry into every part of their lives. And those opportunities don't have to end when a person leaves school. LBC creates ways for people to continue learning, creating, and reinforcing positive self-beliefs throughout their lives.

Julia was especially moved by LBC's From Page-to-Stage literacy-based program, which combines reading with drama and the arts to help students strengthen foundational literacy skills. She believes programs like this, which LBC first made available to under-resourced communities, are essential because literacy shapes a person's opportunities throughout life.

"Every child deserves the chance to discover the confidence that comes with learning," she said. "It is an incredible program for our community and too important for these kids to lose. It is vital we ensure it continues to be available to as many children as we can reach."

Julia's $50,000 match is an invitation to join her in that belief. Whether a gift is $15, $50 or $500, she wants donors to know that it matters. "If you don't give the $15, the $50, the $500, we don't get the $30, the $100, the $1,000," she said. "It doesn't matter the size. It's going to make a difference."

And with her match, every gift can make twice the difference.

BUYER BEWARE

Purchasing tickets from 3rd party vendors for your own security, we strongly recommend that you do not purchase tickets from any supplier other than Luther Burbank Center for the Arts. We do not allocate tickets or authorize any other ticket seller, services, brokers, or agents to sell our tickets. Only tickets purchased directly from the LBC can be guaranteed, and tickets purchased from any other source are done so at your own risk and may be deemed invalid. Tickets sold by resellers often have substantial service fees and/or a markup to the original price, resulting in prices that are significantly higher than face value. We cannot control the prices or fees someone else may charge for tickets we do not authorize to be resold, nor can we provide any redress if you encounter a problem with your tickets.

ACCESSIBILITY

Accessible seating for patrons with mobility limitations are located in several places on the main floor and balcony level of the Ruth Finley Person Theater. Tickets for these locations may be purchased online or by contacting the ticket office, either by phone or in person. Elevators at both the north and south provide access to additional ADA seating in the Balcony. Seating in the Balcony for Door 1 is accessible by ramp and Balcony Door 4 is accessible by lift.

All theaters have wheelchair—and scooter—accessible locations where patrons can remain in their wheelchairs or transfer to theater seats. Patrons who cannot or do not wish to transfer from their wheelchairs to a theater seat should request wheelchair-accessible locations when ordering tickets. Select seats have a single adjustable armrest, which are available in the Ruth Finley Persons Theater.

Wheelchair accessible seating may be purchased by phone, in person, and online. If seats are ordered online, our Patron Services Office will contact you for accommodation needs, along with an additional follow up call leading up to the performance for a final confirmation. Bariatric chairs are also available in all theaters with advance notice, please contact Patron Services.

It is the patron's responsibility to maneuver their assisted mobility device through the Center in case of an emergency. If this is not possible, the patron is required to have a companion who can assist with their needs. Staff and volunteers are not able to leave their posts and will not be available to assist patrons in moving around the campus.

For assistance selecting accessible seats or for more information about accessibility for a person with disabilities, please contact the Patron & Member Services Office 707.546.3600 or email at patronservices@lutherburbankcenter.org.

Staff, volunteers, door attendants, and ushers are prohibited from assisting patrons in transferring to or from a wheelchair, theater seat, or vehicle; operate motorized mobility aids such as scooters and Segways; or to provide personal attendant services such as assisting patrons in the restroom, with taking medications, or with similar activities.*

Service Animals

Certified service animals necessary to assist patrons with disabilities are welcome and must remain on a leash or harness at all times. Please contact the Patron & Member Services Office if you intend to bring a service animal to an event so that appropriate seating can be reserved for you.

Assisted Listening Devices (ALD) and T-Loop (Telecoil)*

Assistive listening devices (ALDs) amplify and clarify sound by cutting down or eliminating ambient noise. Radio Frequency (RF) assistive listening systems are installed in all theaters and headsets may be used at any seat. Devices are distributed free-of-charge on a first-come, first-served basis. Please visit the Concierge Desk located in the North Lobby to check-out an ALD or T-Loop (Telecoil)* and be prepared to provide a credit card or driver's license, which will be held until the device is returned.

T-Loop (Telecoil)—Headsets with induction neckloops are available for patrons who use hearing aids and cochlear implants with a "T" switch. Ask your audiologist whether your hearing aid or cochlear implant has a "T" switch (telecoil) and how to use it with an assistive listening headset.*
